

Popular Government

SPRING/SUMMER 2007 • VOLUME 72, NUMBER 3

ON THE COVER: Can the General Assembly improve its effectiveness? Its members and staff think so.

Cover Article

4 The State of the Legislature: A Self-Assessment by North Carolina Lawmakers

David Kiel and Thomas Covington

North Carolina lawmakers evaluate the General Assembly on long-term impact, fiscal integrity, effective deliberation, institutional change, and political courage.

Feature Articles

16 Are you e?

Brenda Currin

How can local governments be sure that their websites are working for them? They can do simple, quick analysis using the six-part tool presented in this article.

25 Juvenile Curfews: Constitutional Concerns and Recommended Remedies

Daniel M. Blau

In the last decade, federal case law on juvenile curfews has greatly expanded, rendering many state decisions obsolete. Recent important decisions are analyzed, and recommendations for sound curfew ordinances are presented.

34 Benefiting from Comparative Performance Statistics in Local Government

William C. Rivenbark, David N. Ammons, and Dale J. Roenigk

Can comparative statistics on program performance across cities produce improvements in the efficiency and the effectiveness of service delivery? Data on eight service areas from fifteen cities say yes.

43 Hands on the Pulse, Eyes on the Future

John B. Stephens, Editor

Faculty of the School still “crawl through the bloodstream” of local government, as the School’s founder long ago encouraged them to do. What is on the horizon?

Departments

2 NC Journal

New Bulletin Explains Law on Immigrants’ Eligibility for Benefits • Center Helps Organize National Conference on Paying for Water • Project Assists Government and Jail Personnel with Jail Health Law

51 At the School

Farb Retires • Nicolet Joins School as Associate Dean for Information Technology • School of Government Foundation Welcomes New Board Members • Houston Assists New University Commission • Institute Receives Public Health Partners Award • Bland Simpson Gives Coates Lecture • Behind the Scenes at the School of Government • The MPA Program: Celebrating Forty Years of Educating Public Service Leaders